The thing went on this way for a day or

The Seargeant-at arms pounced upon and

I am not sure if any message was sent Judge Francer, informing him that a quorum was present. I do not of myself know that Judge Frazier had any knowledge of the intention or the purpose to prevent a quorum of the Legislature. TESTIMONY OF R. HOUGH.

I live in Memphis. I was living there in July, 1866. I cannot say that I know of any effort having been made to break up Testimony for the Prosecution-Letter the Legislature. I received a letter from Washington looking that way. I have an extract from the letter containing all that relates to that subject. The rest of the letter is of a private character. The writer is the Hon. J. W. Leftwich, member of Congress. I was clerk of internal revenue in the old first district. The paper on ution of Mr. James Mullins, whose testiwhich it is written I suppose is official state what you know that took place in the Judge Gaut : A private letter in no other court, civil or criminal, in the civilized world, I presume, would be allowed to be introduced without knowing what is in it, put it to the court whether a private etter having no reference to Judge Frazier, immediate or remote, but constituting merely a part of the private correspondence between other parties, can be introduced against this defendant?

Mr. Maynard: We are trying to show that there was a combined and concerted effort to frustrate and subvert the Legis-lature. We purpose reading this letter to show that one public character writes to a government official to use his influence to accomplish this result, and to secure on the part of a member of the Legislature this bandonment of duty. Judge Brien: If Mr. Leftwich was on trial here, charged with an offense, then a letter written by him would be pertinent; but if Judge Frazier is on trial and the letter has been written by Mr. Leftwich to Mr. Hough, to a gentleman at Memphis what in the name of honor, or of commo sense, or of justice, can this letter have to do with Judge Frazier? A proposition to introduce such a letter as evidence in a case on trial before a justice of the peace would have been spurned and indignantly

The counsel for the prosecution having objected to the reading of the letter as idence on the trial, the quest whether it should be received as evidence was put by the President, when it was decided by a vote of thirteen against six that the letter should be received. It was then handed to the clerk, who read it as follows: House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., June 24th, 1826.—My Deak House: I have not enjoyed the pleasure of hearing from you, but am still through the industry of our triends, able to hear of you often.

Col. Cooper, the President's Private Secretary. has just told me that he had received some serious complaints against me for the interest taken in your nomination. He could not give the in your nomination. He could not give the anthors, as the communication was strictly considential, but expresses the belief that I know what I'm doing. Senator Patterson still says, however, that I am mistaken in my man, but I tell him to look after East Tennessee, and his hands will be full. I received yesterday from an unknown source, an editorial from the Accienche on the subject, which I think will do you more good than harm. But this is not what I started to write about. I want to ask you to see our friend Richards, and if he cannot be induced to oppose the ratification of the constitutional amendment let him take sick and stay at home, and he and you I did not come, as I said, till about 10 o'clock cause the crowd had increased and it was feared they would force their way into the House. The next morning the prisoners were taken before the court and released reant-at-arms was in the building; I left him in at least. That night be was taken. I came back next morning and found him missing. The news was that they had taken him. The habeas corpus was carried up to tion of the constitutional amendment let him take sick and stay at home, and he and you shall never repret it. The Northern "people" do not require of us any such ruinous logislation, but recognize, as you and I do, that in giving the negro freedom and all the civil rights, that we have done quite enough without giving him a right to interfere in our election, and this is all the amendment means. This is the most important issue ever presented, and if we ratify it there is no telling what will be the next requirement. A refusal to ratify it may keep as from our seats for a while, but that is nothing when principle is at stake. Now, Hough, I havegiven you an every part in so important an issue, and you must do it.

Sometime ago Richards wrote me asking a favor which it is impossible pet to do, and I so wrote him and hope he properly understands it. I will not probably write to him on this question, but will rely exclusively on your management, as I know he will be influenced by you in gested that a statement of that matter was any thing that is not in itself wrong.

I may go to Nashville if they have a quorum, but I hope they will not. I would be pleased to hear from you at length.
